1. Our Use of Cookies

A cookie is a small amount of data which is sent to your browser from a website’s computers and stored on your computer’s hard drive. Cookies can be used to provide you with a tailored user experience and to make it easier for you to use a website upon a future visit. We may include cookies on our Blog and use them to recognize you when you return to our Blog. You may set your browser so that it does not accept cookies; however, you may need to enable cookies on your web browser if you wish to access certain personalized features of our Blog. Cookies are a form of non-personally identifiable information.

Please visit <http://www.allaboutcookies.org/> and <https://cookies.insites.com/disable-cookies/> for more information on how you can disable some or all cookies.

2. Categories of Cookies We May Use

We may use the following categories of cookies on our Blog:

Strictly Necessary Cookies. We may use cookies that are strictly necessary for operating our Platform. These include authentication cookies that enable you to log in to secured portions of our Website and that help us prevent fraudulent activities on our Website.

Performance/Analytical Cookies. We may use cookies for purposes of assessing the performance of our Blog, such as by gathering information about how many visitors use/visit our Blog and how they navigate around it. These cookies help us identify issues so that we can continually improve our Blog.

Functionality Cookies. We may use cookies that allow us to enhance the functionality of our Blog. For example, these cookies enable us to keep track of the items you access on our Blog and to remember your preferences the next time you visit our Blog.

Targeting/Advertising Cookies. We may use cookies that help us determine which content or advertising may be relevant to your interests. We may also use this information to assess the performance of our marketing activities.
